

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The subject matter of the invention described and claimed herein is disclosed as a vapor -containing element for adding to the ductwork, or the inside walls of the AIS ductwork, which element preferably is shaped to conform to the shape of said ductwork, with the material forming the walls of the element. The open inside of the cylindrical component would allow air to pass through the element unobstructed, with little pressure drop.